Babishai visits Olea Academy, Buwate

Poetry Foundation

I had the distinct honour of being invited by Principal Jane Settuba Mugga of Olea Academy, to preside over Book Week and train pupils in creative writing.

The pleasure was all mine. The Babishai Niwe Poetry Foundation began in 2009 with the purpose of promoting poetry amongst Ugandan women, and since then we have grown to support African poets all over the globe.

We reach out to children through training in creative writing, poetry, dance and theatre.

"Book Week is a creative time to explore writing, creativity and the impact of learning through stories."

The Elements of Stories

Beverly shares with the pupils, the elements of a story.

Character and Point of View

Who are the main characters in the story? Is the story in first person? (I/My/Me/We) or Third Person (They/He/She)?

Conflict/Struggle

What is the conflict? Is there a storm that blew off the roof? Has the sky suddenly turned pink?

Plot

This is the sequence of events. What happens? In which order do they happen?

Theme/Main Idea

What is the main idea of the story? Is it friendship, money, travelling?

The pupils created their own stories, role-played and danced. Learning is Fun!
